Saves moisture - Crushes Clods
Makes a good seed bed,
Fills air spaces,
and speeds germination.

In preparing your seed bed this Spring, remember these points. Lumps of dirt and hard clods obstruct the growth of plant roots. Crush these clods into a firm mulch so they may contribute their share of nutriment to the growing crop. It is widely recognized that the success of crop growing depends more upon the preparation of the seed bed than upon any other one thing. Every farmer should be interested in this machine that not only cultivates and pulverizes the soil, but packs as well.

May we show you this machine?

"My baby brother had eczema which began when he was only four days old. It came in little pimples and then a rash, and he was covered. He was so cross that he could not sleep, and he cried."

"This lasted about two months before we used Cuticura. It helped him, so we bought more, and he was all healed after we had used two cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment." (Signed) Miss Alma Williams, Wynous Cove, N. B., May 22, 1918.

The Exchange Problem

No one question is commanding such widespread interest in all countries as the problem of equalizing rates of international exchange. It is a problem which first engaged the attention of financiers and governments. Soon, however, it called for the careful consideration of all mercantile houses, manufacturers, and others engaged in large enterprises doing an international business. Now it is a matter of concern to every individual purchaser. It has now reached that acute stage where it is influencing politics, international and domestic, and is vitally affecting all channels of trade and commerce. In the newspaper press, reviews, and in private conversation it has eclipsed even discussions of the Peace Treaty and the League of Nations.

So far as Canada is concerned, our money is at a premium in practically every country but the United States, where it stands at a very serious discount. British money is at a discount in both Canada and the United States, so, too, is French, Belgian, Italian, German and other foreign currencies. The United States alone enjoys the distinction of having its money at a premium in all countries.

Canada has always purchased more extensively in the United States than that country has in Canada. In other words, our imports from the States have always exceeded our exports to that country. On the other hand, our exports to Great Britain have always exceeded our imports from the Old Land. In former years we have, therefore, been able to liquidate our "adverse balance" in the United States by British funds on New York; that is, we paid our debts in the States with money which Britain owed to us.

At the present time we cannot do this because, while Great Britain and other European countries owe Canada far more than this country owes the United States, they are not in a position to pay us in cash or in securities negotiable in the States, because we have been forced to sell to them on credit on the one hand, and on the other they too, owe the States large sums in excess of what the States owe them.

Therefore, while waiting for that time when Europe will be able to pay Canada what it owes us, we must pay the United States what we owe it either in gold or in goods. In the three years 1917, 1918 and 1919 Canada bought goods from the United States to a total of one billion dollars in excess of the value of the goods sold by us to the States. Notwithstanding this heavy debt to the United States, the American Exchange National Bank of New York estimates that Canada has a favorable balance with the whole world of over $500,000,000.

In the meantime, and until Canada can collect from other countries, there is only one of two ways, or a combination of both, whereby Canada can right her balance with the United States. (1) By buying less from the United States than in the past, and buying more at home and from Great Britain, France and other countries; and (2) by producing in Canada in larger quantities those things which the United States will buy from us, and energetically proceeding to sell such goods across the line.

The fact that the Canadian dollar has at present a purchasing power of only 89 or 85 cents in the United States will, in itself, operate to discourage Canadian buying there, while the fact that our dollar will buy more than a dollar's worth of goods in Great Britain will encourage heavier purchases there. This will help to right exchange conditions between Canada and the United States, and will also help the Motherland. From the purely Canadian standpoint, however, the main thing is that our people should produce in ever increasing volume those things which are in demand in the United States and which we can most easily and profitably export to that country.

At the same time, the Ottawa Government would be well advised at the approaching session of Parliament if it loses no time in adopting the policy advocated for so many years by the farmers of the West and in increase the preference accorded to British goods under the tariff to fifty per cent. This would greatly assist Great Britain to enlarge her sales in Canada, and, to the extent that she does so, to replace United States goods, thus assisting both Canada and Britain. It would likewise result in a lowering of Customs taxation on the masses of the Canadian "consuming public."

Close American observers of conditions are becoming alarmed over the prospect of losing a considerable part of their Canadian business—Canada is the best customer the United States has—and leading financial men there are urging adoption of a policy which will have the effect of raising the value of the Canadian dollar across the line back to par.

Canadians, however, should not depend on United States action, but should by hard work and unremitting energy increase production in all lines, and thereby enormously increase their export trade to the United States, and thus offset their heavy purchases of needed commodities from that country. And the Ottawa Government should encourage and assist in this work by substantially lowering, or altogether removing, the tariff on all implements of production, coupling therewith a larger tariff preference to British goods.

"Can you tell me the funniest thing you ever saw?"

"Yes, sir, I can. It was a man trying to blow up a solid rubber tire on an automobile."

A little nonsense then and now may stir up an awful row.

WINTER WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Our Canadian winters are exceedingly hard on the health of little ones. The weather is often so severe, that the mother cannot take the little one out for an airing. The consequence is that the baby is confined to overcrowded, badly ventilated rooms, takes cold and becomes cross and peevish. Baby's Own Tablets are given to keep the little one healthy. They are a mild laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prevent colds. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Disappointing Peace

This is not the peace whose hope sustained us through the dark days of the war. The new world that we thought we were making there is still unformed; the spirit of international rivalry and distrust is not safely chained up; and instead of a world animated by the ideal of common good, we have a world, partly distracted by the rivalry between the fiercely opposing principles of concentration progress and partisan tyranny, partly affecting an indifference towards this issue which it cannot really feel, and indulging the old hopes of political isolation that broke down so completely during the war.

A. F. & A. M. Annual Social

One of the most enjoyable Annual Social evenings in connection with Masonic circles was held last Friday evening in their Hall. In spite of the intense weather some seventy of the brethren, wives and friends gathered together and enjoyed a few hours in perfect harmony and recreation. The evening commenced with about an hour spent in progressive conversations which made the company present feel right at home. This was followed by a guessing competition which created a great deal of interest and amusement. There were two prizes awarded in connection with this which were won by Mesdames Amery and Outkes. After the above event a buffet lunch was served which was tastily prepared and arranged and greatly enjoyed. The evening ended by a short dance. During the evening the company were favored with vocal solos by Mr. Horace Reynolds of Calgary, and Bro. Scholefield which were greatly appreciated judging by the rounds of applause that greeted every number. Special mention should be made of the excellent programme prepared by Bro. Laut J. W. and was in the capable hands of Bro. Scholefield as master of ceremonies. A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Horace Reynolds and Bro. Scholefield for their entertainment, Mrs. Scholefield and Rev. Bro. Swenerton as accompanists, Miss Halliday who kindly played for the dance and Mrs. Willis and ladies who helped in preparing and serving the excellent lunch, and Mesdames Willis, Lewis and Laut who acted as reception committee. Every one present expressing their regret at the rapid passage of time and the unavoidable absence of Rev. Bro. Dingle through illness and Wor. Bro. Horner and Bro. Austin through the press of business.

A Constipation Cure Sold on Guarantee

Dr. Hamilton Says His Remedy Never Fails to Cure Quickly

Mine is a marvellous remedy. There are others, but not one possesses the peculiar merit so prominent in mine.

With my remedy I guarantee to cure constipation.

I also guarantee to prevent it. My preparation, which is in pill form, gives tone and regularity to the bowels that quickly rid the system of effete matter, accumulations of bile and other injurious results of costiveness.

I call my pills Dr. Hamilton's, and I am sure they are safe, because composed of such health-giving vegetable extracts as Mandrake, Butterbur, Hyoscyamus and Dandelion. My pills are not harsh or drastic. They cause no pain, no distress; they are prescribed by physicians because of their mildness and certainty to cure.

For women and children I know of no better medicine for keeping the system healthy. For men they are perfect.

I have proved their merit in biliousness, constipation and headache, and can strongly recommend them in these troubles.

She controlled herself, but when she spoke again her voice had fear and shame in it. "I—I hate to tell you, Mr. Elden, but I must tell you—I took—I let him give me some money—to buy things—he said maybe I was short of money, and he would buy me some new clothes—and he would pay me extra, in advance—and he gave me fifty dollars—and—and—I've spent it!"

Elden swung on his heel and paced the length of the office in quick, sharp strides. When he returned to where Miss Warden stood, wrapped about in her misery, his fists were clenched and the veins stood out on the back of his hands. "Scoundrel," he muttered, "scoundrel. And I have been tied to him. I have let him set the standards; I have let him weigh the gold. Well, now I know him! There was a menace in his last words that frightened even Gladys Warden, well though she knew the menace was not to her, but ranged in her defence.

"Here," he said, taking some bills from his pocket. "You must tell him you can't go—tell him you won't go. You must return his money. I will lend you what you need. Don't be afraid; I will go with you."

"But I can't take your money, either, Mr. Elden," she protested. "I can't stay here any longer; I will have no job, and I can't pay you back. You see I can't take it even from you. What a fool I was! For a few clothes—"

"You will continue to work for me," he said.

She shook her head. "No, I can't. I can't work anywhere near him."

"You won't need to. The firm of Concord & Elden will be dissolved at once. I have always felt that there was something false in Concord—something that wouldn't stand test. I thought it was in his business life; and yet that didn't quite seem to give the answer. Now I know."

There was the sound of a key in the street door, and Concord entered.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

Concord paused as he entered the room. He had evidently not expected to find Elden there, but after a moment of hesitation he nodded cordially to his partner.

"Almost ready, Miss Warden?" he asked, cheerily. "Our train goes in—" He took his hat from his pocket and consulted it.

Dave's eyes were fixed on the girl. He wondered whether, in this leading moment, she would fight for herself or lean weakly on him as her protector. Her answer surprised him.

"It makes no difference when it goes, Mr. Concord. I'm not going."

on it." Her voice trembled nervously, but there was no weakness in it. The money which Dave had given her was still crumpled in her hand. She advanced to where Concord stood vaguely trying to sense the situation, and held the bill before him. "Here is your money, Mr. Concord," she said.

"Why, what does this mean?"

"No, I won't take it, until you explain to me what it means."

She opened her fingers, and the bill fell to the floor. "All right," she said.

Concord's eyes had shifted to Dave. "You're here, bottom this time, Elden," he said. "What does it mean?"

"It means, Concord," Dave answered, "that after all these years I have discovered what a cur you are—in just in time to bailk you, at least in this instance."

Concord flushed, but he maintained an air of composure. "You've been drinking, Dave," he said. "I meant no harm to Miss Warden."

"You know me, I call you a liar as well as a cur," he said. "The word cut through Concord's mind, and he knew by God he wouldn't take that from any man who shouted, and with a swing of his arms he drove his coat over his shoulders. Dave made no motion, and Concord slowly brought his coat back to position.

"I was right," said Dave, calmly. "I knew you wouldn't fight. You think of your honor, well—it's better worth protection."

"The girl were not here," Concord protested. "I will not fight."

"Oh, I will leave," said Miss Warden, with alacrity. And I hope she soaks you well, she shot back, as the door closed behind her. By this time Concord had assumed a superior attitude. "Dave," he said, "I won't fight over a quarrel of this kind. But remember, there are some things in which no man allows another to interfere. Least of all such a man as you."

"I'll get back," he said.

"Why such a man as me? I know I haven't been much of a moralist in business matters—but I've been in the wrong company for that—but I draw the line."

"You're fine stuff, all right. What would your friend Miss Hardy think if I told her all I know?"

"You know nothing that could affect Miss Hardy's opinion—"

"No?"

"No, you don't. You're not blushing a tenderfoot now. I call you—I've got my cards—play them."

"You know your memory is so good," Concord said. "I won't play your lights off that night I passed your card! You guess you remember. What will Miss Hardy think of that?"

For a moment Dave was unable to follow Concord's thought. Then his mind reached back to that night he drove into the country with Bert Morrison, when on the brow of a hill he switched off his lights that they might be better admired the majesty of the heavens. That Concord should place an evil interpretation upon that incident was a thing so monstrous, so alien to his better nature, that Dave felt back upon the basic human instincts reserved for such occasions. His fist leapt forward, and Concord crumpled up before it.

Concord lay stunned for a few minutes, then with returning consciousness, he tried to sit up. Dave helped him to a chair. Blood flowed down his face, and as he lay there, Dave had what occurred it was joined with tears of pain, rage, humiliation.

"You got that out of me, Elden," he said, after awhile. "But it was a coward's blow. You hit me when I wasn't looking. Very well. Two can play at that game. I'll hit you when you're not looking . . . where you don't expect it . . . where you can't hit back. You interfere with me—you strike me—you that I took out of a thirty-dollar-a-week job and made you all you are. I did it, Dave; gave you the money to start with, coached you all the way. And you hit me . . . when I wasn't looking." He spoke disjointedly, his thoughts were morbidly distorted and self-pity. "Very well. I know the stake you're playing for. And—"

He turned his swollen, bloody face to Dave's, and he uttered the threat in his eyes as he uttered the threat. "I'll hit you, Dave," he repeated, "when you can't hit back."

"Thanks for the warning," said

Elden. "So Irene Hardy is to be the stake. All right! I'll sit in. And I'll win."

"You'll think you've won," returned Concord, leeringly. "And then you'll find out that you didn't."

"I'll present her to you, Dave, like that," he said, with a leer. "I'll bring her and hold it before him."

Dave's impulse was to seize the thick, fleshy throat in his hands and choke it lifeless. With a resolute effort he turned to the telephone and dialed a number.

"Send a car and a doctor to Concord & Elden's office," he said, when he had got the desired number. "Mr. Concord has been hurt; fell against a desk, or something. Nothing serious, but may need a stitch or two."

Then, turning to Concord, he said, "I will depend on you whether this affair gets to the public. On you, and Miss Warden. Make her own explanation. And as soon as you are able to be about our partnership will be dissolved."

Concord was ready enough to adopt Dave's suggestion that their quarrel should be kept out of the public, and Gladys Warden apparently kept her own counsel in the matter. In a twinkling she was going out of business without even the formality of an assignment, and Concord was left alone with his competitors, the dissolution of the Concord & Elden establishment occurred almost before he was aware of it.

The explanation, "for business reasons," given to the newspapers, seemed sufficient to most of the public. But hardnism, but may need a stitch or two."

absolutely no misgivings on that score. Concord, on the other hand, knew that his standing, with Irene would not, as yet, justify him in playing any trump card. He realized that the girl's affections were placed on Elden, but he trusted, by winning for himself a similar position in the family, to grow gradually into more favourable relations with her.

Concord had a manner, a mildness of voice, a confidential note in his words, which had not failed him on previous occasions, and although he now stalked bigger game than ever before he had no serious doubt of ultimate success. As for Irene, a certain aversion which she had felt for Concord at first disappeared under the influence of his presence in the household and the courteous attentions, which, although directed to her mother, were in some degree reflected upon herself.

Long Promised Home Rule Bill Is Presented

LONDON.—The bill for Irish home rule long promised by the government, was presented in the House of Commons here. The first reading was of the title alone, and was a mere formality, preliminary to taking up the measure proper.

The present bill, it is understood, adheres fairly closely to the measure as outlined by Premier Lloyd George in the House on December 22 last. The government project centres on setting up two parliaments in Ireland, one for the south and one for the north.

Home rule, as the government hopes to give it to Ireland, is based primarily upon the declaration of the Premier in his December speech that Great Britain cannot accept separation, but the largest opportunity will be given to the Irish people to unite on the constitution of parliament in the course of time, which will embrace Ireland as a whole.

For the north of Ireland the area embraced will probably include the six counties mentioned by the Premier in his original outline, with possibly some slight modifications, as a consequence of which the northern parliament will be a very much smaller body than the southern organization.

One of the fundamental features of the bill has always been a council representing the two parliaments, and it is understood that this council will derive its powers from the two bodies which will be responsible for its selection. The proposed legislatures will have extensive powers, and also representation in the imperial parliament.

Such matters as education, local government, agriculture, transportation, municipal affairs, insurance and the collection of taxes will be under the control of these two legislatures, while matters of more serious import to the empire, such as foreign affairs, defence, navigation and the higher judiciary, are reserved for the decision of the imperial government.

Mr. Lloyd George announced that the proceeds of land annuities in Ireland would be given as a free gift to the two parliaments, and estimated that this would amount to 3,000,000 pounds for the year. This sum, or other industrial provision, will be made for the maintenance of the parliaments, if the government's bill is accepted.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CLEANED OUT HIS RHEUMATISM

He Found in the Old Canadian Remedy Relief That the Hospitals of Egypt Could Not Give.

Cape St. George, Nfld., March 1. — (Special).—Eugene Cornet, keeper of the light and fog alarm here, and who was overcast with the Newfoundland forces, is a firm believer in Dodd's Kidney Pills as a help for kidney disease and rheumatism.

"For two years I suffered from kidney disease and rheumatism," Mr. Cornet states. "I was treated for them in the hospitals in Egypt. But it was five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills that cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely a kidney remedy, by the purging of the kidneys in shape to strain all the impurities out of the blood they remove the uric acid, the cause of rheumatism. With the kidneys cleansing the blood, there can be no uric acid to crystallize in the muscles, the cause of the excruciating pains known as rheumatism. Ask your neighbors about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A great many authorities have predicted a return of that terrible plague which swept Canada from one end to the other not long ago and left so many deaths in its wake, and those who did survive were left in a great many cases with some serious after-effects, such as weak heart, shattered nerves, impoverished blood and a general weakened and exhausted condition of the system.

All Trade In Foreign Bonds Now Prohibited

Toronto, Ont. — An embargo on trading in stocks, bonds, or other securities, from countries outside Canada, will go into effect immediately. This drastic action has been taken by the financial interests of the Dominion at the request of Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, in order to protect the home security market.

Trading with American exchanges for cash will thus come to an end for the time being, though there is no restriction against buying on margins, except that imposed by adverse exchange. Action was forced by the flooding of the Canadian market with bonds and stocks from Britain, under which the sellers reaped a handsome profit owing to the premium on the Canadian dollar.

In a statement issued by the bond dealers' association, intimation was given that action will be taken to prevent the importation of non-essential securities, especially from the United States, and that the issuance of new securities for non-essential purposes in Canada would be discouraged.

Agents of American manufacturers in Toronto, who learned of the proposed new restrictions, were greatly agitated and anxious for information as to the probable course of parliament.

Madrid. — Thirty houses and a church have been destroyed by a tornado which swept over the town of Benicarlo, on the eastern coast of Spain, 80 miles northeast of Valencia.

Russian War Loss

Lithuanian—Russian Soviet newspapers received here estimated the Russian losses through the war at 32,000,000 rubles. The Russian newspaper says the country is unable to export anything at the present time, but on the other hand finds it necessary to import provisions valued at one billion rubles.

TWO OF OUR MANY TESTIMONIALS

Calgary, Alta., Jan. 26, 1920.
The Alberta Koalore Syndicate,

Gentlemen.—I take great pleasure in adding my testimony to the many others which you have received in favor of Koalore. I can truthfully say it is a saving of fifty per cent. on the coal bill. I tried it in my stove at night, and got out of it a saving of fifty per cent. on the coal bill. I found that after treating my coal with Koalore that I had to use only half the amount of coal and I got more heat with no smoke and no soot, and I found it easily applied to the coal. I would not be without it, as I consider it has cut my coal bill in half. Yours truly, JOHN F. BARRY. 85 St.-A Street.

Prof. Washburn Describes Food Value of Milk

At the closing session of the recent convention of the Manitoba Dairy Association, held in Winnipeg, Prof. Washburn gave a very valuable address on the question of food in relation to our well-being. He said in part:

Some people almost resent the suggestion that there may be something for them to learn in the matter of food. It is clear, however, that one of the most important discoveries of the century has recently been made, and it is simply this: That there is a something made from mere bone-building, ash, muscle-building protein, and energy yielding substances required for general growth and well-being; that the young will not grow, but will, in fact, die if a sufficient quantity of this substance is lacking, and that older animals, man included, will sicken and die if deprived of these vital substances.

The nature of this substance, or these substances, there are known to be three or more of them, is as yet poorly known, but it has been fully and completely demonstrated that certain common foods lack wholly or largely in all three of these essentials while other contain liberal amounts.

Among the deficient foods may be mentioned bolted flour of wheat, barley, corn and oats, potato centres, dry peas and beans, polished rice, sugar, macaroni, corn meal, pork, poultry, mutton and fish, hard yellow vegetable oil, and nut margarine. Any combination in any amount of the foregoing food substances would prove insufficient to maintain life. Something else is essential.

The source of these so-called "vitamins" is not a haphazard matter any longer, for it has been proven that the substances bear vital and intimate relation to the growing or vegetable portion of green plants known to the germ of seeds, and to foods such as milk and eggs, which by nature were produced to be foods for growing young. Thus we are prepared to discover the secret.

Among protective or corrective foods is a long list of the most common foods, for example: Milk, butter, cream, cheese, egg yolk, cod liver oil, whole egg, green leeks, honey; corrective of heart and kidneys, cream, skim milk, egg yolk; brain, fish, rice, rice polish, germs of all seeds, wheat bran, yeast; corrective of scurvy, skim milk, eggs white, cabbage, lettuce, spinach, apples, lemons, oranges, onion, green peas, chutney.

In other words, foods in the protective group are either something growing, that was produced, like milk and eggs, to be the food for the young, or was a storage gland for extract thereof of a live, growing animal or vegetable. It is probable that other foods will be added to the long lists already prepared that are protective and corrective, but we now know enough about these foods and their influence to protect us and our children from many ills, and in fact to give our young generation a stimulus to stronger manhood and womanhood than they would probably have developed in any haphazard system.

The best single example of improvement brought about by feeding occurred in the city schools of Seattle, Washington, in that city 23 per cent of the children were deficient in their studies, neither did they play in a good, vigorous manner. Dr. Brown, the school physician, studied their cases, arranged to give the children a glass of whole milk each forenoon and afternoon. This done in three weeks these children were out at play like normal children, improved rapidly in their studies and continued throughout the year vigorous on the playground and so much improved in their scholarship that the rise in their grade raised the grade of the entire schools 2 1/2 per cent.

Dr. Vrooman, in charge of the Rotary clinic, Vancouver, B.C., is now being studied, and could work on a group of backward children. I saw them three weeks ago, they looked bright and happy, and the teacher reported positive improvements.

When we figure out the refuse we have, and the waste in the form of food, and figure out also the waste contained in these foods and raise the cost figures in proportion to these waste substances, we find a rather astounding situation.

For example, a roasted steak, at 25c per pound, the edible solids cost 81 cents per pound, and in comparison, milk is worth, per Canadian quart, 25c; eggs at 45c per dozen means a cost per pound of edible solids of $1.27, making milk worth 40c per quart; ham costing 40c per pound, means $1.04 per pound of edible solids and in comparison milk is worth 34c per quart.

Postages, which are 78 per cent of water, at a price of 2.5c per pound, or a cost of 15c per pound of digestible dry matter; squash, which is 88.3 per cent water, at a price of 4 cents per pound means a cost of 15c per pound of digestible dry matter. These figures bring bulk and some vitamins equal to the best, but food also, or viewed the other way, milk brings food as cheap as the best and vitamins also. Whether we take it "going or coming" milk is there.

It is most emphatically not meant that an adult should live on milk, or that he should not eat bread and meat, but it is our intention to emphasize the need for milk or some other similar commodity in the diet of all growing children, and that these substances can be procured at less cost in milk and milk products than in any other form available.

In the production of stronger children we must remember that food is the basis of the body, and that man's physical condition must be right before he can develop mentally or morally, wholly and soundly.

The Riches of The Northland

We Are Beginning to Realize the Potential Wealth of Our Northern Territory

To become prosperous a country must possess an energetic population and abundant natural resources and raw material through which the intelligent inhabitants may cash their remunerative industries. These truths have long been recognized; each one can think for himself of a number of illustrations. When the essentials are present, nothing will succeed in keeping a land so blessed in a state of poverty—not even misadministration, though, naturally, bad statesmanship has a deterrent effect while it lasts.

The republic to the south has become able to the necessity of protecting and conserving the remnant of her natural resources, but somewhat late in the day. No longer are her forests the admiration of the world; no longer do her serving men and apprentices stipulate in their engagements that they will not be served fresh salmon more than twice a week; her oil, and her coal, and her iron, are being drawn upon with so lavish a hand that the best brains are already warning her, should the present rate of production be increased in geometrical ratio, as has been the case for several decades, lean years are in store for not very distant generations.

The Dominion of Canada is in a better position. True, we sacrificed our noble white pine forests; burnt up our best hardwoods to get rid of them; ruined many a fine fishery by mill-dams and refuse, but the country is so big, so wonderfully endowed with all that a great nation demands, and its population so small for the area occupied, that we have yet the greatest stores of timber, coal and probably minerals any country inhabited by a first-class white race can claim. And of all the whole area, it may be questioned if any part of it has much advantage over Manitoba and her sister prairie provinces. Only yesterday, as it were, we thought of our fertile farm lands as our all in all; today we are beginning to realize, though but dimly as yet, the potential wealth of our undeveloped, almost unexplored, northern territory. Only recently a letter was received from a trader living in remote post, in which he spoke of lakes twenty miles in length, well stocked with fish, that as yet are shown on no map, and which he himself had not found an opportunity to visit.

In this connection the report by the Commissioner of Northern Manitoba, Dr. R. C. Wallace, which has just been submitted to the Provincial Government, possesses a deep interest. It is the result of investigation made on the spot by a man singularly well fitted, both by temperament and by training, to make such report. The present Commissioner received instructions on his appointment to develop by all the means within his power the great district known as Northern Manitoba. In pursuance of these instructions, Dr. Wallace has visited many outlying stations, has studied the geology and minerals of his district, collected much data on the water-powers, correlated all available information on the timber resources of the southern portion of the region, and now turns in the result of his labors summed up in the report aforementioned.

It appears that this land beyond the Saskatchewan and north of the inland seas of the province has yielded products valued at nearly three and a half million dollars during the year 1919—marvellous showing. Copper and gold ore came out of the north, though the surface has hardly been scratched, to the amount of $604,633; timber sold worth $388,300; the lakes yielded fish which sold for a total of $163,000; fur, once the sole commodity exported, gave $1,867,000; and agriculture (from a land where no crops could be raised, according to public conviction), $144,800.

And the men who have produced all this wealth say: "Give us transportation—roads and railroads—great wireless stations, help us to get in touch with the capitalist outside, and then we will soon show you that the present production of Northern Manitoba is but a hint and an earnest of what is to follow."—Winnipeg Free Press.

Higher Education Advocated For Rural Districts

A survey of all the work being done to Canadianize the foreigners coming to this country was one of the several steps taken by the national conference of educationalists after some discussion at its final session at Ottawa.

Another discussion turned on the idea of having French taught in English elementary schools, and English taught in the French elementary schools. Every delegate present agreed that the cordiality which would result from such a step would be of inestimable value, but no special resolution of the matter was passed. Prof. W. F. Osborne, Winnipeg, and H. T. J. Coleman, Kingston, made eloquent pleas for anything that would give the English-speaking Canadians the full advantage of the vast amount of French psychology, which, they urged, was being untapped. Prof. W. G. Carpenter, Edmonton, agreed with this idea, but thought the council should take no immediate action. His view was shared by Prof. W. H. Vance, Vancouver.

Rural schools and their difficulties took up much time, a motion being finally passed asking for a study of the various plans of school district organization and how such affects the status of the teacher and the efficiency of the school.

C. M. Hamilton, member for Weyburn in the Saskatchewan legislature, made a strong plea for some school system which would give the rural folk the chance to keep their children in rural areas after they left the public school. Children of fourteen years of age were too young to leave the school to attend high school in the cities and yet there was no option if these children were to secure higher education. He wanted children whose natural avocation was farming to have access to higher education, but he urged, there was at present no solution to the difficulty in sight. The war had also taught Canadians that they must have a deeper appreciation of the country in which they lived, but that would not meet the case of those who could not afford to send their children to school to the age prescribed by many provinces as a compulsory school age.

Bishop Richardson, New Brunswick, referring to the idea of making a survey of text books, declared that any national council that failed to take cognizance of education's relation to religion failed in its purpose and would not warrant the support of Christian bodies. Answering this, Dr. D. McIntyre, Winnipeg, said the step taken by the council to ask for survey of three leading Canadian universities of text books on literature, history and geography covered any such objection.

Vigorous condemnation of some dealers in motion pictures also took up some time. It was agreed that the best way to overcome the difficulty was to urge the public to attend only decent picture theatres. Several delegates of old means often adopted to circumvent censorship boards.

State aid to parents and the compulsory age took little time, John Sullivan, Vancouver, declaring that there were already too many fathers at the coast working to help keep their parents. "And we cannot do anything until the state is willing to step in and help," he declared.

On it being pointed out by Bishop Richardson that the term "economy" might easily be abused, this and several other phases of the report on resolutions passed at the Winnipeg conference were sent to the various provincial governments. It was decided, however, to ask the provincial governments to supply data on the legal enactments covering compulsory education.

The conference agreed with the Winnipeg convention ideas, first, that the federal governments be asked to adopt a distinctive Canadian flag, and secondly, that an appropriate function be held once a year, preferably on Dominion day, for the public to render tribute to citizenship of those who have met all the conditions of naturalization.

President W. J. Bulman, Winnipeg, stated that this first Dominion-wide assembly of educationalists had far exceeded his most sanguine expectations.

Must Not Have Another War

If There Were Another Great War, All Alike Would Be Ruined

It is certain that if there were another great war, every man, woman and child in the nation involved would be conscripted for the warlike service of the nation. Imagine, then, the nations instantly condemned, when war began, to complete industrial servility. Imagine also the cities being bombed day and night with deadly gases, every bomb or packet of gas accounting for its hundreds. If that would not kill civilization, nothing physical or material could.

We think ourselves that it would kill it. We are not imagining this prospect for the purpose of arguing by means of terror. That would be futile. The spirit of man cannot be daunted, and when civilized man is fighting for his principles, which without exaggeration he loves dearer than his life, or when his blood is up, he is equal to any fate. We are merely offering a cold and rational argument that civilization is threatened, that it must be saved, and that it can be saved, so far as we can see, only by the means that is ready to our hand.

As Mr. Lloyd George well said in his speech, if there were another great war it would not very much matter who won and who lost—all alike would be ruined. We must aim at a regulated state of peace, or resign ourselves not only to material eclipse but to the greatest condemnation of the human mind ever uttered by itself.—London Spectator.

"Any particular choice of cut?" asked the butcher.

"Yes," replied the customer. "I'd like a cut of about 50 per cent. in price."—Boston Transcript.

Attack Stands of United States

Italian Paper Points Out U.S. Did Not Enter War Until Europe Was Safe

Rome.—The United States is savagely attacked by the Epoca, which prints a lengthy comment on Secretary Glass's letter relative to further credits to European countries.

"Secretary Glass," the newspaper says, "does not take into consideration the fact that America did not participate in the war until western Europe was out of danger, and that the United States took good care that Germany should not be excessively trampled upon and impoverished, the being an excellent American client. With the exception of the western part of Europe, the so-called 'people's peace' seems to be a prelude to new slaughter. Given this situation, Europe is asked to disarm completely, while America plans the augmentation of her fleet by spending a billion dollars annually. Is disarmament possible when Russian Bolshevism, origination of the Polish revolution, transformed itself into a ferocious aggressive power? Russia is in league with Germany, which is organizing an army for the former, hoping to overturn the peace of Versailles. Invasion and destruction of the Polish republic would be a spark that would kindle a new fire which would reduce the treaty to ashes. Therefore, disarmament is possible, if Russia is the first to do so, and why not the United States?"

Value of Manitoba Farm Lands Increasing

Land in Some Districts Has Practically Doubled in Value

The annual report of the Provincial Lands Department of Manitoba shows that the department has only a small portion of first class farming lands still unsold in the province. A large number of settlers are coming to Manitoba from the south. Owing to the draining carried out in certain portions of the province land in drainage districts has practically doubled in value. In 1919, 16,151 acres were sold at $143,139. Only 50,592 acres of provincial lands remain to be sold at a price ranging from $4 to $17 per acre.

In 1919 receipts of principal and interest from deferred payment amounted to $16,601.82; filing fees, 418.16; hay and wood permits, $2,461.66; interest on bank deposits $711.50.

Plenty of Moisture In Alberta

Farmers Believe That Moisture in the Soil is Better Than For Several Years

Farmers, interviewed by the Calgary Herald, are all inclined to the belief that at present the moisture in the soil is better than has been the case for several years past, and all agree that there will be ample for germination next spring in every part of the province. Especially is this the case in the neighborhood of Calgary, where there is more moisture at the present time than at any time since 1907. Indeed, it is feared that some difficulty may be experienced in tractor plowing.

B. C.'s Pulp and Paper Industry

Now Producing About Seven Million Tons of Paper Annually

British Columbia is now producing 645 tons of paper daily, or about seven million tons annually. Eleven years ago the province was not producing any paper at all. The progress that has been made in the last eleven years is being maintained, so that during the next few years a considerable increase in the pulp and paper industry of the province may be looked for.

British Columbia produces fourteen per cent, of the pulp and paper manufactured in Canada—the second largest paper producing country in the world—at the present time, being the third largest producing province, following Quebec with 24,000,000 tons and Ontario with 21,000,000 tons annually.

INFLUENZA HAS LATER DANGERS

Particular Care Needed When Patient Is Convalescent, Says Expert

The influenza convalescent who has apparently recovered from the disease and is yet in a strangely weak and depressed condition should be the object of particular care, according to Dr. Louis I. Harris, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases of the New York Health Department. In the opinion of Dr. Harris, the after-care of the influenza patient is most important. The co-operation of the patient, coupled with the willingness to see that the weakness and depression are a part of the illness, though coming after the disease itself has spent its force, is a factor in effecting a complete return to full health. On the other hand, the determination to ignore this debilitated condition and to fight against it will, Dr. Harris says, frequently bring serious consequences upon the patient.

After Effects Bad
"The subject of the after effects of influenza," said Dr. Harris, "is one of particular interest to the scientist at the present time."

"First, and perhaps the most momentous condition to be considered, is the striking depression, mental, nervous, and physical, complained of by most patients. Those attacked by the disease with moderate severity are almost always afflicted with this depression, which should be recognized and dealt with. Those who have had mild cases of the influenza are less affected by depression, and their quick return to health and strength gives rise to the belief that influenza is trivial. On the contrary, influenza in its after effects is anything but trivial, and calls for the application of the rules of common sense and sanitation which are the fruit of years of experience."

"Tonic treatment, well chosen diet, and great care in not becoming over-tired or allowing the body to be chilled are necessary. Eggs may be eaten, not more than two a day, for the average adult. Of course, it must be remembered that in many cases this disease tends to direct its force against the kidneys, and therefore we instruct patients to avoid eating a great amount of meat, eggs, or beef extracts. Eggs, soft boiled, poached, or beaten, raw, are advisable in limited number. The raw eggs should always be well agitated before taking."

When Good Food Is Bad

"With milk and eggs as a foundation, the patient should eat good nourishing food, including meat, fish and vegetables, simply prepared. Frying, for instance, is out of the question. Good food prepared in an unassimilable manner becomes bad food; especially in this to be noted in cases of convalescence from influenza, for disease often manifests itself in vomiting, and in intestinal and gastric disturbances, and it is important not to weaken the digestive function by the eating of poorly prepared food, or even the best of food in ill-digested quantities. The quantitative distribution of foodstuffs should be so adjusted as not to overtax the stomach, but the patient should eat generously and frequently."

As a tonic to build up the blood and stimulate the shattered nerves, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body, improves the appetite, strengthens digestion and drives away the feeling of weariness and depression always following an attack of influenza. Those who give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial will be amply repaid by the new health and strength this tonic medicine always gives.

A Nervous Wreck

BY DR. D. L. GRANTIER.

How many business men feel fagged out, nervous, with a "soggy brain"—worn out completely before the day and its tremendous tasks are half over? Try the right way! Clean the body first. That will help your nerves, your head and your circulation. Your doctor will tell you that anything from a headache or a common cold to gripe or a serious illness may result from allowing food to ferment in the intestines. Don't give the body a chance to absorb the poisons. Remove the toxins from the system and give the tissues of the body aid to resist disease by taking an occasional laxative such as castor oil, or a tiny pill made up of May-apple, aloin, jalap, and sold by most druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

The kidneys and bladder suffer from the wear and tear, and we get chronic inflammations sometimes indicated by backache, painful voiding of water—dull, heavy feelings. Perhaps the uric acid is stored up in the system in excessive amount, and consequently when the urate salts are deposited in muscles and joints one suffers from lumbago (pain in back), rheumatic pains, gout, etc.

Nothing will act so nicely as "Anurio" (anti-uric-acid), a recent discovery of Dr. Pierce's which can be had at all drug stores. "Anurio" washes away the poisons, cleanses the bladder and kidneys—rendering them antiseptic—consequently one is soon cured of lumbago, rheumatism, gout, and the body is put into a clean, healthy state.
